From 1977 through the 1981 season, the ACC women's tennis tournament was held in the fall. Starting with the 1982-83 academic year, the tournament took place in the spring. Beginning with the 1986 tournament, the order of finish was determined on the basis of dual match format. Beginning in 1990, the tournament determined the ACC team champion while the singles and doubles champions were determined in regular-season play.

Notes: • From 1977 to 1982, the conference champion was determined solely on the basis of a post-season tournament with points awarded based on individual play. • From 1983 to 1985, the conference champion was based on points awarded both for regular-season and tournament play. The regular season results accounted for approximately 40 percent of the total and the tournament, the remaining 60 percent. • From 1986 to 1989, the conference champion was determined by a three-day single-elimination dual match tournament with a playback to determine places one through eight. • Since 1990 the conference champion has been determined by a single-elimination dual match tournament with no playback.

NOTE: Coaching records noted on this page reflect information within the years of ACC sponsorship of each sport, years of ACC institutional membership, and/or coaching years at an ACC institution.

From 1977 through the 1981 season, ACC women's tennis was recognized as a fall sport. Starting with the 1982-83 academic year, ACC women's tennis became a spring sport. From the 1983 campaign to the present, official ACC coaching records reflect dual match competition for matches played in the spring only. However, the overall coaching records reflect both fall and spring dual match competition from 1977-1981 and 1983 to the present. Because no conference tournament was held in 1982, records for that season are not included in the above figures.
